Impounded rivers: perspectives for ecological management

Related outputs

Ecofriendly river management under ever-increasing environmental pressures

A reservoir operating method for riverine ecosystem protection, reservoir sedimentation control and water supply

A new method to assess the flow regime alterations in riverine ecosystems

Editorial: International Society for River Science
Optimizing environmental flows between dams

Meso-habitat use by brown trout (Salmo trutta) in a small groundwater-dominated stream

Reservoir operating rules to sustain environmental flows in regulated rivers

Hydrology and ecology of river systems

Meso-habitat use by bullhead (Cottus gobio)

Instream flow science for sustainable river management

Editorial

Wood as a driver of past landscape change along river corridors

Characteristics of freshly deposited sand and finer sediments along an island-braided, gravel-bed river: the roles of water, wind and trees

Integrating climate-hydrology-ecology for alpine river systems

Patterns of denitrification rates in European alluvial soils under various hydrological regimes

Global partnerships and the new international society for river science (ISRS)

Turbidity dynamics during spring storm events in an urban headwater river system: the Upper Tame, West Midlands, UK

Trees as riparian engineers: the Tagliamento river, Italy

Initial adjustments within a new river channel: interactions between fluvial processes, colonizing vegetation, and bank profile development

A decision support system for identifying the habitat quality and rehabilitation potential of urban rivers

Advancing science for water resources management

Linking hydrology and biology in assessing water needs for riverine ecosystems

Hydrodynamics of floodplain wetlands in a chalk catchment: the River Lambourn, UK
Braided rivers: where have we come in 10 years?

Suspended sediment dynamics for June storm events in the urbanized River Tame, UK

Riparian tree establishment on gravel bars: interactions between plant growth strategy and the physical environment

Physical habitat, eco-hydraulics and river design: a review and re-evaluation of some popular concepts and methods

Assessment of hydrodynamic simulation results for eco-hydraulic and eco-hydrological applications: a spatial semivariance approach

Dams and geomorphology: research progress and future directions

Dynamics of river-aquifer interactions along a chalk stream: the River Lambourn, UK

Survival and growth responses of Populus nigra, Salix elaeagnos and Alnus incana cuttings to varying levels of hydric stress

Effects of deposited wood on biocomplexity of river corridors

Vegetable propagule dynamics and fluvial geomorphology

Characteristics and controls of gravel-bed riffles: an analysis of data from the River Habitat Survey

Riparian zones: where biogeochemistry meets biodiversity in management practice

The Tagliamento River: a model ecosystem of European importance

Classifying the hydraulic performance of riffle-pool bedforms for habitat assessment and river rehabilitation design

Ecohydrological and ecohydrographical methodologies applied to conservation of riparian vegetation: the Caura River

Rivers and wood: a human dimension
Patterns in woody vegetation along the active zone of a near-natural Alpine river

Using historical data in fluvial geomorphology

Legitimizing fluvial ecosystems as users of water: an overview

Restructuring physical geography

Island-dominated landscapes of large floodplain rivers, a European perspective

Ecohydrology of riparian forests in the Orinoco River Basin

Sustaining water-related ecosystems: the role of instream bedform design in river channel rehabilitation

A hydrogeomorphological context for ecological research on alpine glacial rivers

Trends of macroinvertebrate community structure in glacier-fed rivers in relation to environmental conditions: a synthesis

Sediment deposition along the channel margins of a reach of the middle River Severn, UK

Scales of hydroecological variability within a groundwater-dominated stream

Development, flood risk and the urban environment: experiences from the River Tame

Assessing adult Trichoptera communities of small streams: a case study from Charnwood Forest, Leicestershire, UK

Hydro-ecological variability within a groundwater-dominated stream

Sustaining our rivers in crisis: setting the international agenda for action

Ecological gradients within the riparian forests of the lower Caura River, Venezuela

Riparian vegetation and island formation along the gravel-bed Fiume Tagliamento, Italy

Flow variations and macroinvertebrate community responses in a small groundwater-dominated stream in south-east England

Regional variations in the sediment structure of trout streams in southern England: benchmark data for siltation assessment and restoration

Classification of river regimes: a context for hydroecology

Wood storage within the active zone of a large European gravel-bed river

Longitudinal variations in exposed riverine sediments: a context for the ecology of the Fiume Tagliamento, Italy

A perspective on the abiotic processes sustaining the ecological integrity of running waters

Large wood retention in river channels: the case of the Fiume Tagliamento, Italy

Potential role of island dynamics in river ecosystems

River restoration: policy and practice

Russian and Eastern European rivers

Instream mesohabitat biodiversity in three groundwater streams under base-flow conditions

Riparian flooded forests of the Orinoco and Amazon basins: a comparative review

The influence of drought on chalk stream macroinvertebrates

Flow management to sustain groundwater-dominated stream ecosystems

Bench development along the regulated, lower River Dee, UK

Causes of catchment scale hydrological change

A reference river system for the Alps: the Fiume Tagliamento
A conceptual model for alpine proglacial river channel evolution under changing climatic conditions

Channel changes and invertebrate faunas below Nant-Y-Môch Dam, River Rheidol, Wales, UK: 35 years on

The distribution of spiders in the wooded riparian zone of three rivers in Western Europe

Morphological and ecological change on a meander bend: the role of hydrological processes and the application of GIS

River energy budgets with special reference to river bed processes

Floodplain rivers and their restoration: a European perspective

Addressing the effects of siltation in a trout stream experiencing exceptional low flows: River Glen, UK

Hyporheic temperature patterns within riffles

Case studies in the application of geomorphology to river management

Hydrological and ecological interactions within river corridors

Water allocation to protect river ecosystems

Historical channel-floodplain dynamics along the River Trent: implications for river rehabilitation

Rivers and their catchments

Fluvial hydrosystems: the physical basis

The drainage basin perspective

The scientific basis of managing biodiversity along river margins

Sustaining the ecological integrity of large floodplain rivers

Inter-basin water transfers: issues affecting the West Midlands in the 21st century
The nature of river habitats

Human impacts on fluvial systems

The hydrosystem concept in river management

The conceptual basis

Local variability of gold in active stream sediments

Sensitivity of alpine stream ecosystems to climate change and human impacts

Patial distribution of spiders on the floodplain of the river trent, UK: the role of hydrological setting

The effects of water abstractions on invertebrate communities in U.K. streams

The role of coarse woody debris in forest aquatic habitats: Implications for management

The scientific basis for setting minimum ecological flows

Changing river channels: the geographical tradition

River channel assessment: a method for defining channel sectors: the River Glem, Lincolnshire UK

Assessing the river aquifer interactions within the hyporheic zone

The role of dead wood in aquatic ecosystems in forests

Floodplain Coleoptera distributions: the River Trent, UK

Thermal profiles within river beds

Low flows and recovery of macroinvertebrates in a small regulated chalk stream

Influence of water abstraction on the macroinvertebrate community gradient within a glacial stream system: La Borgne d'Arolla, Valais, Switzerland
Glacial rivers: physical habitat and ecology

Flow allocation for in-river needs

The impact of large dams and river basin schemes

Rivers: dynamic components of catchment ecosystems

rehabilitation of river margins

Physical habitat changes and macroinvertebrate response to river regulation: the river Rede, UK

Assessing the ecological effects of groundwater abstraction on chalk streams: three examples from Eastern England

Restoration of floodplains: a UK perspective

Groundwater invertebrates of European alluvial floodplains

Biotic score and prediction to assess the effects of water abstractions on river macroinvertebrates for conservation purposes

Floodplain assessment for restoration and conservation: linking hydrogeomorphology and ecology

The use of coleoptera (arthropoda:insecta) for floodplain characterization on the River Trent, U.K.

Freeze-sampling method of collecting drainage sediments for gold exploration

Management of regulated rivers in South America

The role of ecotones in aquatic landscape management

Water engineering and landscape: prospect for environmentally sound development

Reforested alluvial corridors: a lost resource

A freeze-coring technique applied to pollution by fine sediments in gravel-bed rivers
Management of fish populations in large rivers: a review of tools and approaches

The regulation of the River Derwent

Perspectives for ecological management of regulated rivers

Historical analysis of fluvial hydrosystems

Water management: the case of Lake Biwa, Japan

Regulated rivers in the United Kingdom

Hydrological changes and river regulation in the UK

Accumulation of fine sediment within substrate gravels along two regulated rivers, UK

Rivers and river regulation in the UK

Hydrological changes and river regulation in the UK

Morphology and sedimentology of a tributary confluence bar in a regulated river: North Tyne, U.K.

Large rivers and large water projects

Timescales for ecological change in regulated rivers

River regulation in Europe: an historical perspective

Water quality characteristics of regulated rivers

Channel aggradation below Chew Valley Lake, Somerset, U.K.

Turbidity and suspended solids variations downstream of a regulating reservoir

Channel changes and invertebrate faunas below Nant-Y-Moch dam, River Rheidol, Wales, UK

Wave-movement and water-quality variations during a controlled release from Kielder Reservoir, North Tyne River, U.K.
Rivers and landscape

Water quality implications of artificial flow fluctuations in regulated rivers

Sedimentation within a regulated river

Channel changes following reservoir construction on a Lowland English River

Rivers

Channel changes in regulated rivers

Habitat changes below Dartmoor reservoirs

Morphological changes of river channels subsequent to headwater impoundment

Long-term consequences of upstream impoundment

Complex response of river channel morphology subsequent to reservoir construction

Physical effects of reservoirs on river systems

Channel response to flow regulation: the case of the River Derwent, Derbyshire

PERMALINK - https://westminsterresearch.westminster.ac.uk/item/94x30/impounded-rivers-perspectives-for-ecological-management