Occupation health and safety, or occupational health and safety is one of the most important things for a business to focus on. Ensuring that your employees and visitors to your office, worksite or venue are safe and protected from hazards is a hugely important thing and something that business owners cannot avoid. There is plenty of legislation in place to help businesses to manage their occupational health and safety requirements, but today I wanted to look at how to manage the potential hazards that can arise in the workplace — specifically, the office. After all, almost every kind of busin
